

Group 2 - Study Skills

Objective: The objective of the study skills meeting is to encourage active and effective study habits amongst peers and understand reasons for studying in college.

Icebreaker

- Three Ps: Divide students into small groups, and have them share three facts about themselves: something personal, something professional and something peculiar, such as an interesting hobby or habit. This icebreaker idea can easily be used in virtual meetings. It should be noted, the personal fact shouldn't be anything too personal—it could be something as simple as a country they've always wanted to travel to. Use this great icebreaker when students go back to school from the summer, helping them warm up to their peers.

Activities

- Blackboard Demo
- Study Spaces
- Tutoring/Writing Center
- Syllabus → Schedule

Discussion Questions

- What approaches have been beneficial to your studying?
- How would you describe your approach to studying for an exam?
- What sorts of tasks/assignments do you tend to procrastinate doing?
- What tasks do you find easy to complete?
- In what ways do you balance responsibilities with free time?